GUEST PRESENTER

Kathleen Forsythe is one of the first knowledge architects in the world and combines her knowledge in cybernetics and systems to generate practical strategies and projects that open new directions for the civil society. The systemic nature of her work is equally applicable at every level from curriculum to organization and management.

Intrigued by the Sound to Symbol Methodology (Dr. Fleurette Sweeney's dissertation), by experiences led by Dr. Sweeney with teachers and children, Michiko Nitaira's work in Japan and with parents and children with autism spectrum, she sees the work of Music EdVentures as a living example of the natural way of learning, the biology of cognition, and conversation theory. She is a dynamic, caring, articulate, and inspirational speaker.

Plan NOW to hear her speak!

Update
Thursday, March 1, 2007.

Small groups will work to refine the certification process, develop instrumental music maps, new folksong games, accompaniments to folksongs, and experience Japanese or English literacy through folksong study. Consider yourself "in!"
